

Would Pour Hindus Into the Dominion

London Statist Is Disappointed Because Canada Keeps Them Out.

Declares Canadians Themselves Are Intruders in the Country.

London, June 13.—Today's Statist edited by Sir George Paish, which is the standard weekly review on finance and economy, has a lengthy article on Indian emigration to Canada.

"We had hoped," says the Statist, "for broader views, for more prescience and for a truer Imperial spirit on the part of Canada. The Canadians themselves are all settlers from foreign lands or descendants of such. They are intruders upon the native possessors of the country and hold their position only because of the protection of the British Empire."

"We had fondly hoped that knowing all this, they would recognize the consequent obligation upon them but we have been disappointed. WE have frequently urged in the past and repeat today, that it is the duty of the Indian Government to form and carry out a great scheme of Indian colonization within the British Empire but it is impossible, as things stand at present for the class of Indians most in need of new homes, unaided, to colonize successfully."
